Brief Description: Changing the child support calculation to provide for a residential credit.

HB 2788 - DIGEST

Requires that, if an obligor parent pays for day care or special child rearing expenses that are not actually incurred, the obligee must reimburse the obligor for the overpayment.

Provides that expenses incurred by the nonresidential parent when the child or children are with that parent pursuant to the residential schedule are not included in the economic table.

Directs the court to grant to the nonresidential parent a residential credit against the amount of the transfer payment due under the standard calculation.
