1 AN ACT Relating to addressing the foreclosure crisis in Washington state through the creation of alternative mortgage financing based on shared appreciation; adding a new section to chapter 61.24 RCW; adding a new section to chapter 82.45 RCW; and creating a new section.

5 BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON:

6 NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. The legislature declares the following:
7 (1) Due to the recent economic crisis and the bursting of the housing bubble, many homeowners find themselves in houses that are worth less than their mortgages. The number of foreclosures in Washington has increased dramatically and will likely continue to increase.
8 (2) Houses are worth more to banks, owners, and communities if they are kept or sold by their owners than if they were foreclosed. When a bank forecloses on a house, the house typically loses a great deal of value, as much as thirty percent to fifty percent, not including the loss that the house has already suffered because of the general economic downturn. Foreclosure can be a time-consuming process, and empty houses are often difficult to maintain. One badly maintained house can bring down the value of the houses around it, leading to more homeowners having houses that are worth less than the mortgages and new issues for already resource-constrained local governments. In addition, lenders generally would rather manage financial instruments instead of managing real estate; therefore, there is incentive to avoid foreclosure when possible for many parties.

(3) The legislature intends to create incentives for lenders to renegotiate loans for borrowers who have negative equity but who have the ability to pay a lower mortgage that reflects the actual value of the house, thus preventing foreclosure and costs associated with foreclosure.

(4) It is in the state's interest to be prepared for federal action on shared appreciation mortgages, if any federal action takes place following the study to be released by the housing and urban development department in 2011.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. A new section is added to chapter 61.24 RCW to read as follows:

(1)(a) For the purposes of this section, a shared appreciation loan modification is a tool for homeowners whose residential home values have fallen below the amount the homeowner owes on the loan. Through a shared appreciation loan modification, a beneficiary and homeowner may renegotiate a home loan to reflect the market value of the home in exchange for the beneficiary receiving up to fifty percent of the future appreciation of the home.

(b) The future appreciation of the residential real property is determined by the actual sale price of the residential real property when it is sold. The amount of appreciation to be shared is the amount of the actual sale price that exceeds the modified loan, minus the borrower's original down payment and closing costs paid by the borrower when the borrower purchased the residential real property. The beneficiary may not add any special fees or charges for processing or making a shared appreciation loan modification.

(2) At least thirty days before the recording of a notice of sale pursuant to RCW 61.24.040, a beneficiary must inform the borrower of the option for a shared appreciation loan modification if:

(a) The debt under the borrower's current deed of trust on the owner-occupied residential real property is greater than the property's market value as estimated by a certified appraiser; and
(b) The deed of trust is secured by the residential real property.

(3)(a) If the borrower does not request a shared appreciation loan modification within thirty days of being informed by the beneficiary of the shared appreciation loan modification option, the beneficiary may record the notice of sale and proceed with the foreclosure.

(b) If the borrower requests a shared appreciation loan modification, the beneficiary must contact the borrower within thirty days of the borrower's request and review with the borrower the decision whether or not to enter into a shared appreciation loan modification. Failure of the beneficiary to contact the borrower if the borrower requests a shared appreciation loan modification under this section is a defense to any foreclosure.

(4) A shared appreciation loan modification under this section is not a sale or transfer for the purpose of the real estate excise tax under chapter 82.45 RCW when the borrower on the shared appreciation loan modification is the same borrower on the previous loan being modified.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. A new section is added to chapter 82.45 RCW to read as follows:

A shared appreciation loan modification under section 2 of this act is not a sale or transfer for the purpose of the real estate excise tax when the borrower on the shared appreciation loan modification is the same borrower on the previous loan being modified.
